The L3S Research Center of the University of Hannover, in collaboration with the Italian Consulate, organizes the XVIII edition of the week of the Italian language which focuses on the theme "The Italian language and the network, the networks for the Italian language".

The topic will deepen the links and influences existing between the Italian language, the world of the Internet, the information technologies and social communication including social platforms.

Different types of presentations (scientific talks and stage performances) will be organized during the third week of October from the 15th to the 22nd in Hannover, Hildesheim and Osnabrück.

Scientific talks on Thursday 18. at the L3S Research Center will be held in English.

For more information please see the announcement.