The SoBigData project invites researchers and professionals to apply to participate in Short Term Scientific Missions (STSMs) to carry forwards their own big data projects. These opportunities are offered as part of SoBigData’s Transnational Access (TNA) activities and calls for applications are opened every six months. SoBigData welcomes applications from individuals with a scientific interest, professionals, researchers, startups and innovators that may benefit from training in data science and social media analytics.

The participation in the first call for STSM proposal needs to be aligned with one of the SoBigData exploratories on City of Citizens, Well-being and Economy, Societal Debates, and Migration Studies.

Submission Deadline is Friday 25 November 2016.

More details about the call can be found on the SoBigData Webpage:
