A mix of competent contributions, poster presentations and discussions completed the program. It was the shared aim to answer open questions and to offer a first get to know each other.

Opened by Professor Wolfgang Nejdl, executive director of the L3S, with encouraging words a tight program consisting of both structure and organization of the ITIS master program let through the day.

Following the lectures of professors and research assistants, the advanced ITIS students used the opportunity of introducing themselves and telling about their different experiences.

As a key point of the day, three ITIS students presented their interesting projects via poster sessions:

- Md. Khaled Hossain Ansary – GuteArbeit
- Md. Mostafizur Rahman – Mapping of images from different laboratory imaging environments into central imaging archives
- Cong Ding – CloudGPS: A Scalable and ISP-Friendly Server Selection Scheme in Cloud Computing Environments

After a lunch break it was the turn of the new ITIS students to say hello after what they were cordially received.

With coffee and cake professors and students got in nice conversations; eventually the third ITIS Welcome Day ended in the late afternoon as harmoniously as it had begun.

So, thank you very much to all the participants for the lovely day and see you on the next Welcome Day!
