During the meeting, the main focus of the L3S team’s presentation, under the guidance of the L3S member Prof. Smith, was to give insights on the topic “information about the use of data streams and legal evaluation of activities on the Internet” and concomitantly, the “legal framework” and “the future of SSL and Internet security”.

The intense exchange of ideas, which took place afterwards, provided an opportunity for stimulating discussions on the social relevance of the Web, the pioneering and international orientation of the L3S and the valuation of Almuth von Below-Neufeldt, parliamentary member and FDP-speaker for Science, Research and Culture, of how demographic change affects the research and the therewith associated social problems.

The meeting ended with many exciting pulses for science and social politics.
